Thanks for card with good wishes, also for present.
 The colouring of the Sidmouth view is quite Neapolitan. Hope there were some good 'racontains' in the guard van. Do they pursue the cult of bacteriology
 in this building?
 With love. Ym. R.S.
